Scholarships to the MSc programs

The International School of Agricultural Sciences offers a limited number of scholarships to candidates from developing countries. Full scholarships cover tuition, dormitory housing on campus, a monthly living stipend and medical insurance. The scholarships do not cover round-trip airfare or initial living expenses. Applicants must have sufficient funds for these expenses.

Selection is highly competitive. We strongly recommend that you seek other funding sources prior or parallel to applying to our programs. There is a partial list of scholarships on our website: http://intschool.agri.huji.ac.il/schol-sources and we encourage you to research the Internet for more scholarships relevant to your interests.

To be considered for an International School scholarship, submit the completed Scholarship Application form with your application documents.

Good luck!
